

Mumblr User Guide

When you enter Mumblr's home page, you will have several options. First, you may notice the search bar. This allows you to search through the website to find any articles with the given name. You can click on the My Blog button to visit the Articles page. Also, you will see the "Sign Up" and "Log In" buttons. These will take you to the signup and login pages respectfully.

The signup page will have you enter your name, a valid email, and a password of at least 6 characters. Once the information is added, clicking the "Create User" button will create the user and display the new information. Clicking "edit" will allow you to change the account information and clicking "back" will take you to the Articles page.

The login page asks you to enter your email and password. After pressing the "Login button", you will be logged in. Clicking "back" will take you to the Articles page. Clicking "Log out" will log you out.

In the Articles page, you will see a list of all articles that have been created. Clicking on a show button near an article will allow you to view it. It will also allow you to create a comment by filling out the name and comment fields and clicking the "Create comment" button. Clicking "Article List" will take you to the Articles page. Clicking "edit" will allow you to edit the article. Clicking "delete" will allow you to delete the article. Clicking the "new article" button near the top will allow you to create a new article.

To create a new article, you will need to be signed in. Fill the title field, at least 5 characters, and the Text field, at least 10 characters. Click "Create Article" to create the article or "back" to cancel and return to the articles page.
